

Parent Internet Safety Resource Guide

- GetNetWise “Tools for Families”: www.getnetwise.org/tools/index. This page provides access to information about a variety of Internet filtering, blocking and monitoring mechanisms.
- Report child pornography to the Pennsylvania attorney general’s office: www.attorneygeneral.gov.
- Disney online: <http://home.disney.go.com/guestservices/safety> for internet safety tips and videos for parents.
- 5 Disney Fun Family Strategies for staying safe online. <http://familyfun.go.com/playtime/web-surfing-safety-702266/>
- Prevent and confront NetBullying with this helpful advice: <http://www.netbullies.com/pages/7/index.htm>
- A parent’s beginners guide to being safe on Facebook, Myspace, and other social networking sites. <http://www.schoolfamily.com/school-family-articles/article/808-myspace-and-facebook-what-you-should-know>
- Lawrence Magid, www.larrysworld.com, is a syndicated technology columnist that writes online articles about Internet dangers and how to avoid them. He also operates web pages for kids and teens: www.safekids.com and www.safeteens.com.
- Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force, www.onlinesafety.com, provides information and activities to protect children from Internet crime.
- Children, teens, parents and teachers can learn about online safety and privacy: www.wiredkids.org. They offer chat under the watchful eyes of WiredSafe moderators.
- National Center for Missing and Exploited Children: www.missingkids.org. This organization works to find missing children and prevent abduction and abuse. They have a 24 hour toll free number, 1-800-THE-LOST (1-800-843-5678) and a 24 hour CyberTipline, www.missingkids.com/cybertip.
- WebWiseKids: www.webwisekids.com. This is the home page of an organization started by a woman whose sister was abducted by someone she met on the Internet. She provides tips and links to other organizations working to prevent child abuse and exploitation.

